

DESERT MIRAGE

Rising from a desolate, rocky landscape in Joshua Tree, California, is a three-bedroom house made of shipping containers. Designed by architect James Whitaker for a client in the film industry, the residence sits on a 90-acre mountainside plot of land where stormwater created a gully. The shipping containers are oriented to maximize views and provide privacy, where needed, and solar panels on the roof of the garage power the building. This futuristic, space-age home sparks our search for edgy pieces fit for desert life.

- 1. Smyth / $278 / troy-lighting.com
- 2. Petra Mini Leather Tote Bag With Bamboo Handles in Orange by Carolina Santo Domingo / $695 / modaoperandi.com
- 3. Smoked Wood Diffuser Set / $193 / us.floraiku.com
- 4. St. Louis Classics in Tobacco to Champagne Polarized 24k / $295 / krewe.com
- 5. Dream Coffee Table / $12,000 / fernandomastrangelo.com
- 6. Planar / Grid by Yabu Pushelberg for Warp & Weft / $90 per square foot / warpandweft.com
- 7. Large Harold Cabinet in Gold / Price upon request / jessevisser.com
- 8. Collage Vase in Matte White / Price upon request / studioa-home.com

