Outdoor Rugs

Now that the sunshine is finally here, we can spend more time outside—but we want to keep it stylish! When it comes to outdoor rugs, there is no reason to compromise on design. The search for rugs that offer pzazz yet also practical performance for outside spaces has grown and, in line with the global outdoor furniture market, their sales are set to continue rising. Here is our choice of outdoor rugs for 2026 from a selection of American and European brands

Copenhagen is fast becoming the most exciting design event of the year, with everything within walking or biking distance and a beautiful setting. In terms of rug brands, this year, familiar faces are back in town alongside a few new names to look out for.

Starting off in the core area for events, in Kongens

Nytorv FRAMING is a group show with a big draw. This year nanimarquina will be part of the event, showing Matiz, a new collection of rugs by French designer Julie Richoz. In the same area, Linie Design will be holding the exhibition 'Palette Muse' to demonstrate the sensory and artistic potential of textiles.

See Vandra Rugs' latest designs at Store Strandstræde 9 and round the corner will be a display of OCHRE's most recent collection of textiles and ceramics by artist Anush Ghukasyan. At Amaliegade 6, Layered will be showing off its new Cord collection with Massproductions.

Just below the Kongens Nytorv district is Kultur, where Finate will display a new range of fun rugs within the group show PLAYROOM, alongside other Finnish brands. Then to the east of this, in the Christianshavn area, Swedish brand Kateha will be part of the Material Matters show in the Gammel Dok building; to the west, in the shopping area of Rosengård, Rezas will once again have an installation at the exclusive store Illums Bolighus.

Moving north, the district of Frederiksstad is where the Copenhagen-based Ark Journal's Design / Dialogue event will be located. Proposed as an exclusive showcase for the future of design, creative collaborations and craftsmanship, this year will see three rug brands: Warp & Weft, cc-tapis—who will present a ready-to-buy collection with Studioutte—and Berlin-based brand Reuber Henning, which will bring the new ONO collection.

Further north still, but still within walking distance, Jan Kath Design will take over the fabulous space of Pakhus 11. There will be stunning rugs, a Nepalese loom, a rug sample bar, and a lounge area where visitors can pause and experience the rugs up close.
